ANNOUNCEMENTS

OPENS TO OVERFLOW AUDIENCE
Myrtle-Harder Co. is Unusual Attraction—Elevating a Husband—First of Repertoire of New York Successes.

The Myrtle-Harder company, playing at the Davis theatre this week is particularly rich in resources. With this fact a Bulletin representative was especially impressed at the opening performance Monday afternoon which held an overflow audience.

These resources are a company of thoroughly trained and versatile artists giving every incentive to superlative efforts in a line of Broadway successes and a complete scenic equipment not lacking in any detail. The company stands high in reputation and certainly merits its popularity from its capable artists to its gracious manager, Mr. Harder who is so completely versed in catering to the theatrical public.

Miss Myrtle proved herself a natural and charming little actress. She wears her beautiful artistic gowns with much grace and wins the hearts of her audience completely. Jack Bertin, who assumes the leading role with her is equally pleasing; his fine physique and pleasing stage presence add to his natural ability. The company in all their detail of stage setting and effects at prices within the reach of all.

Opening their repertoire with "Elevating a Husband," the Myrtle-Harder managers showed theatrical strategy. The play abounded with humor of the light, refreshing, relieving variety, which is contagious. It is at all times in an atmosphere of refinement and tells a very interesting story of a business man who had, through hard battle with the world, accumulated an independent fortune. He finally decides to marry and is elevated into a social world by his wife. The complications that follow are most amusing and are dramatic as well.

Besides Miss Myrtle and Mr. Bertin other stars in this cast were Miss Nell Russell as Mrs. Muhren, the big-hearted boarding mistress, and Geraldine Russell as the lady who both manages her role decidedly real. Harry Blasing as Herbert Duncan also cleverly interpreted his part.

Tonight the play presents one of their feature plays, "The Girl of the Golden West." This play was for two years in New York and it is David Belasco's masterpiece.

Special matinee today, "Ready Money," a play dealing with a thrilling subject, counterfeiting money.

COLONIAL THEATRE.
Charlie Chaplin Appearing in "A Night Out," Two Real Comedy.

Through unavoidable circumstances the reels for the Charlie Chaplin comedy were not presented at the Colonial theatre last week, much to the chagrin of the management, but they are now fully promised for today, at both matinee and evening performances. The story of "A Night Out" is a familiar one, that of Charlie's attempt to put the hotel on the dry list, by drinking most of the wet goods in the building, but neither he nor his friend, Ben Turpin, are equal to the task and become hopelessly and gloriously hilarious, and being far from home, attempt to reach the room at the hotel. This is an easier task to imagine than to accomplish, and their efforts to get into the right room fill the film full of incidents of both a convulsing and thrilling order. Charlie's last resort is to beat up a strange woman's room. He enters in her absence, she returns later, dresses for the night, and retires only to find the bed already has an occupant to get out of it, but by all means see how he does it. Other pictures today are "Hazards of Helen," "Series, Girl at the Throttle," "Adventures of Sammy Orphan" (animal picture) and "Playthings of Fate," Biograph.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. George H. Ewing Speaks on Systematic Giving—Miss Marion S. Rogers Entertains at Birthday Tea.

In view of the every member canvass Sunday afternoon, the morning service at the First Congregational church was in preparation for this work. In outlining plans for benevolence, Rev. G. H. Ewing said in substance that there should be a regular offering time for offerings, that each person in the family should give, that is in order to do this there should be a provident laying by from one's income, and that the giving should be proportional. This plan will prevent a deficiency in money for carrying on church and benevolent work.

POETRY

THE ORPHAN BALLAD SINGERS.
A BALLAD.
Oh, weary, weary are our feet,
And weary, weary is our way,
Through many a long and crowded street,
We've wandered mournfully today;
My little sister she is pale,
She is so tender and so young,
To hear the autumn's sullen tale,
And all day long the child has sung.
She was our mother's favorite child,
Who loved her for her eyes of blue,
And she is delicate and mild,
She cannot do what I can do.
She never met her father's eyes,
And she was never like her own;
In some far distant sea he lies,
A father to his child unknown.
